Portable DVD

Great for long-night stakeouts in haunted houses or for long flights to visit family.

Portable PS3

Someone actually built this... Useful or not, it's pretty damned cool.

SCUBA Gear

Air tank, mask, snorkel, and fins we'll let you guess what it can be used for. Hint: SCUBA is an acronym.

Sub Sandwich

The best army travels on its stomach. Someone important said that and you must agree.

Rollerskates

Sure, you're not twelve anymore and it's not the 70s, but these things can be pretty useful. Then again people your age might break something on these things.

Portable Stereo

This little beauty grants a Ghostbuster near instant access to music. Now a party or theme music is just a button push away.

Survival Kit

Mostly a left-over from the great millennium scare, there's got to be some useful stuff in here... gauze! Fire Extinguisher! Condoms! Twine! DUCT TAPE! We're saved!

Blowtorch

It's not just for crème brulee anymore! You can use this to melt all kinds of once useful things into puddles of goo.

.38 Snub

Uhhh... you know you're a Ghostbuster, right?

Where you going with that gun in your hand?

Toolkit

Here's a host of tools to make a technician's life a heck of a lot easier.

Fire Axe

These things are harder and harder to find in buildings. Why is that, do you think? They're quite handy when you need to make holes in locked doors and such.

Gas Can

The perfect container for transporting noxious or dangerous chemicals. Or put some water in it and freak out your friends.

Flare Gun

Good for starting fires, spooking cattle, and occasionally signalling for help. Combine with full gas can for combustible fun!

Trenchcoat

How better to conceal yourself than in this tried and true cliché. We'll even throw in the fedora, free of charge! Now go be inconspicuous!
